CRISIS IN RUSSIA

J. W. T. MASON SAYS CZAR IS HEADING POLITICAL AND SOCIAL REFORM

(Special Correspondence)

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—J. W. T. Mason, the well-known correspondent of the United Press, writes that Russia is on the verge of the most momentous reform in her history. The Russians have infinite patience. They have given the bureaucracy a fair trial in this war, and it has led to nothing but defeat. Driven back from the territory Russian valor had conquered in the beginning, and with parts of Russia threatened by invaders, the people have lifted a warning voice that has come to the ears of the czar.

The czar, temperamentally and instinctively dramatic, may soon add to his vodka prohibition more important political and social reforms. Reformers in the duma are united and menacing. The progressives are in the majority, but the reactionaries are making determined efforts to dissolve the duma. Professor Milukoff, leader of the progressives, has given assurance that if the duma is dissolved it will meet again within a few weeks.

The results of these threats, if they are carried out, are obvious. If the duma is dissolved the czar may have to put down a revolution as well as fight the Teutons. Germany has long hoped that a revolution would compel the czar to conclude a desperate and disastrous peace.

A revolution is at hand. The czar apparently senses the danger, but has not retired at its approach. Instead, he has advanced to meet it. He has assumed open and personal responsibility for the army. This may mean that he will grant reforms. Then Russia would rise from her defeats and become powerful.

THROUGH CAR SERVICE

Seven through cars a day from Los Angeles to La Crescenta is the advantageous change in its time card that the Glendale and Montrose railway offers to dwellers in La Crescenta. The railroad has done a great deal for La Crescenta already in bringing its line to the doors of that growing center. The same number of cars will run both ways.

Such a service as that should recommend the railway to its La Crescenta customers. Just think how great an advantage it will be to get into the car at Sixth and Main, Los Angeles, and not have to change until getting to one's own door in La Crescenta. On Saturdays and Sundays only there will be a through car as late as 11:30 p. m. from Los Angeles, and on Saturdays and Sundays only a car as late as 11:20 p. m. from La Crescenta.

Northbound cars leave Montrose 20 minutes after leaving Glendale. Southbound cars leave Montrose five minutes after leaving La Crescenta. Eagle Rock cars of the Los Angeles railway connect with Glendale and Montrose cars at Central avenue in Eagle Rock for Glendale, Glendale Heights, Montrose and La Crescenta.

O. E. S. FUNCTION

Under the direction of Miss Cora Hickman of Tropico, district deputy grand matron, the new chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star at Van Nuys held its institution and installation Friday night. The new lodge is one of the most influential in the district, having a large number of well-known people in its ranks. Miss Hickman was appointed district deputy grand matron, this making the eighth lodge of the Eastern Star that has conferred that honor on her. Under her auspices the interesting and picturesque ceremonial of the order flowed smoothly and dramatically.

After installation a banquet was given those present. The Masonic lodge of Van Nuys donated 21 chickens for this affair. Many prominent Masons and members of the Eastern Star from Los Angeles were present. The guests altogether numbered about 300. With Miss Hickman there went from Tropico Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Coleman and Mrs. D. H. Imler.

FRUIT GROWERS TO MEET

Fruit growers in Southern California have been notified that the forty-seventh annual convention of the state fruit growers will be held in Visalia, Tulare county, Nov. 18 and 19. A. J. Cook, state horticultural commissioner, announced the dates for the meetings. Among the chief subjects to be discussed will be marketing, insect control, clover crops and mulching, control of scale insects and leaf hoppers.

TO PROBE CHARGES

CITIZENS' COMMITTEE TO BE APPOINTED—CHAIRMEN MAKE REPORTS

The regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held in the Chamber of Commerce building, at 1011 West Broadway, Friday evening, Sept. 10. J. W. Usilton, president, being absent on account of illness, J. N. McGillis was elected chairman pro tem. R. M. Jackson, secretary, was present to attend to his regular duties. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

Although absent, Mr. Usilton, president, had prepared his usual monthly recommendation, which was read by the secretary. It is as follows:

"Members of the Chamber of Commerce,

Gentlemen: From information gathered from various sources the indications are that we are on the way to a revival in business of all kinds. It is stated by real estate men that there are more inquiries for houses than for a year or so past, and that money to loan for building purposes is easier to obtain and at a lower rate of interest.

While the Chamber of Commerce should probably not meddle in this recall business, believing it detrimental to our city and with small basis for such drastic action, we would advocate the formation of a citizens' committee to take hold of the matter and whip it out of existence. Further, it is our candid belief that, while many are honest in their belief through misinformation, that this constant disturbance arises from the desire to annex this city to Los Angeles, and that any pretext is seized upon with avidity to further that purpose.

"The report of the industrial committee of the Chamber of Commerce was complete in detail and the location is one that can do the least injury to any section, and we have heard more favorable comment on it than any report that has been made in this city since we have lived here. The committee reported, by request, before it had fully completed its plans, and it is requested that it continue its labors until it has accomplished fully the work it started to do. Then a special effort should be made to induce factories to locate there.

"Attention is called to the fact that rooms have been obtained by the Chamber of Commerce for the accommodation of the public, where information can be obtained of our genial secretary, Mr. Jackson, relative to most any locality in Southern California, and where rest rooms are provided with stationery, etc., to which visitors are welcome. This costs money and it is hoped that our citizens will come forward and support it. Much credit is due Mr. Jackson for his earnest effort to furnish this room and in making it a pleasant place to call for information regarding this city. It is the desire of the Chamber that different organizations of this city use the rooms for committee meetings, etc.

In the loss of William Herman West this city sustains a distinct loss as he was a genial, valuable citizen, and we recommend that the Chamber pass resolutions of regret to be forwarded to the widow.

On motion the chair appointed the following committee to prepare resolutions of sympathy on account of the passing from this life of their esteemed fellow member, William Herman West, resolutions to be forwarded to Mrs. West: R. M. Jackson, Stephen C. Packer, W. J. Clendenin, and A. T. Cowan.

The question of the recall petition which is being circulated among the people of Glendale was considered. On motion, the president was given authority to appoint a committee of three to confer with other organizations of the city with a view of making a careful investigation as to the truthfulness of the charges brought against the city administration, it being understood that said citizen's committee will make a recommendation as to what course is for the best interests of the city of Glendale. Members of the chamber who spoke adverse to the recall agitation were G. B. Woodberry, W. D. Root, P.A.C. Moore, Ernest H. Owen, T. W. Preston, A. M. Brooks, A. T. Cowan, J. F. Chandler, W. J. Clendenin, R. M. Jackson and J. N. McGillis.

The sentiment expressed by the speakers seemed to be along the line of a square deal for all concerned and that the citizen's committee to be finally appointed should be business men of integrity and ability who are in every way unbiased and who

GENERAL COMMENT

PARKER'S PARAGRAPHS — PERSONAL, POLITICAL, PRACTICAL—PERHAPS

Edith Longfellow, daughter of the poet, H. W. Longfellow, who married Richard H. Dana, recently deceased, preserves by will "Craggie House," the Cambridge home of her distinguished poet-father, for the use of the public. And a paper mill, long the haunt of the poet, William Cullen Bryant, but blown down five years ago, on Long Island, is to be restored by his son-in-law, Harold Goodwin. The new mill will generate electricity for a park in the town of Hempstead.

Thomas Wardell reached his hundredth year Aug. 9, at Seattle, Wash. Born in England; came over when 12 years old; settled at Cincinnati when that city had 7000 population; lived in several states, and at Springfield, Ill., in 1854, and knew Lincoln. He was assisted in celebrating his birthday by 125 children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and one of his neighbors figured out what he had been doing during the 100 years of his life. "He has lived 36,500 days. Translated into hours, the total is 876,000; into minutes, 52,560,000. He has drawn 26,280,000 normal breaths, his heart has beaten 105,120,000 times. Eating three meals, which, figuring sixteen ounces of food per meal, would amount to 5475 tons of food, enough to load a good-sized ship."

A news item dispatch says Hon. Chauncey M. Depew at 81 came back to his room and resumed work at the "Central terminal" after a "vacation with pay" among the Berkshire hills. Vacation with pay sounds good for chairman of the board of directors of the New York Central railway. Anyhow, it is characteristic of Chauncey, who has a reputation for thrift.

A newly discovered Los Angeles poetess is filling the Southland with song, tearing the prosy covering from the jitney bus and giving driver and passengers a song to "sing as you ride." She writes all the time and finds themes everywhere. Even the umbrella used on the sand beach was the subject of a poem. How tastes differ! Another writer passing that way remarks: "Who could make a song stick on that old faded umbrella? I found my inspiration lying under it."

Recently a friend wrote substantially as follows: "During a recent business trip to Portland I enjoyed a pleasure on the side—a grand park concert, city band and noted soprano of grand opera fame. Thirty thousand people sat on benches, on the grass, in autos, while she sang some of the old songs, such as 'At the Close of a Perfect Day,' 'Last Rose of Summer,' 'Home, Sweet Home.' It has been my fortune to participate in several remarkable musical events where enthusiasm ran high, but the complete silence of that immense crowd as these songs were rendered was surely the perfect tribute to a matchless singer."

The candidacy of Elihu Root for the Republican nomination for president is being pressed by certain interests, and is drawing opposition comments from others. One of the ablest papers in the Middle West has this to say: "Senator Root is one of the ablest men in the United States—possibly the ablest, but this fact alone would not be a sufficient reason for running him for president. It it should transpire that his candidacy would be offensive to any considerable segment of the voters, the wisdom of choosing some other candidate would at once be apparent. Mr. Root acted as chairman of the Chicago convention. By his presence there and his official acts he lent tacit encouragement to the acts of that gathering that cost more than half the votes of the Republican party." (Query: Would a truly great man be guilty of the "acts" complained of at the Chicago convention?)

The "minimum wage" is a very much undefined and indeterminate quantity. Mention is made of a capable, well-behaved young woman whose forced simple wants were met by the minimum wage of $8 per week while well, but two weeks' illness lost her position and left her in debt. While record was made of another young woman, no better looking, no better behaved, who applied to the court for an increase in allowance of estate from $12,000 to $20,000 because of her inability to "live" on the first sum.

The most inveterate enemy of Governor Johnson (and he deserves none such) will hardly accuse him of mysterious use of words obscuring or disguising what he really desires to say. Such accusation could come only from those who do not hear or do not read his speeches. His labor day address was greatly appreciated by his great labor audience, and the "fall" he took out of ex-President Taft was truly refreshing.

TRAINING FOR ALIENS

BUREAU OF NATURALIZATION TEACHES DUTIES OF AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP

Among the approximately 14,000,000 foreign-born residents in the United States, 1,650,361 foreign-born whites are classed as illiterate. These illiterates are the natural prey of the designing and scheming foreigners and natives, as well, at every turn. They compel them to pay tribute, both in cash and blood, for every service, both real and imagined, and in the gratification of their desires, however unscrupulous or unnatural.

For years this condition has been studied by the bureau of naturalization in its application to the administration of the naturalization law. It is safe to state that although 85,000 foreigners have been refused citizenship because of mental and moral unfitness, at least that many have been admitted to citizenship in spite of these deficiencies during the period of federal supervision. The courts have been reluctant to refuse citizenship to a candidate, even though he be ignorant of our institutions or of the privileges conferred upon him. Especially is this so where there are no facilities offered by the cities and towns where the petitioners live for overcoming these defects. In many places the public schools have, under the inspiration of the bureau of naturalization, opened their doors to the foreigner and have taught him the duties of American citizenship, and in these places the courts have readily responded to the new order of things and refused citizenship unless the candidate could come up to the higher standard which has been brought about by the federal supervision. This system the bureau has tried out for years, and with success in various localities throughout the country. There is scarcely a state in the whole country that does not now have citizenship classes carried on either by the public schools or under the direction of private agencies.

In many localities where there are hundreds, and indeed thousands, of citizens admitted annually, no cognizance had been given this important proceeding by the general public, municipal officialdom, public school or other authorities until brought to their attention by the representatives of the bureau of naturalization.

It is confidently believed by those who have made an exhaustive study of existing conditions that this great nation-wide educational movement will beyond question change that portion of the alien body which is now in a condition ranging from helpless dependence and mere self-maintenance to a state of productive capacity.

ARMAGEDDON THEME AT BAPTIST CHURCH

The present world crisis in the light of prophecy will be the line of thought at the First Baptist church on Sunday evening. The coming Armageddon of the nations will be treated in the light of Scripture. Earnest students of the Bible will be greatly interested. Many will be surprised to learn how definite prophecy is with respect to the coming conflict. There need be no doubt as respects the hour of darkness which is about to come upon the whole earth. And after the awful night will break the light of the perfect day of universal peace with foundations of justice and expression of truth and love.

Rev. Troy is especially desirous of having all who believe in the near approach of the coming of Christ to attend service at the Baptist church Sunday evening. He has an important announcement to make which should interest every earnest Bible student.

The regular Sunday morning service, with preaching by the pastor. Bible school at 9:50; B. Y. P. U. at 6:45. Open-air song service and Bible reading at corner of Brand and Broadway at 6 o'clock. Everybody invited.

CURES DRUG VICTIMS

RECALL UNNECESSARY

The editor of the Evening News has been a close observer of the acts of the city trustees for almost three years. He has attended every meeting of the Board except two and he has listened attentively to the business transactions. While all of the acts of the Board have not been in harmony with the opinion of the writer, yet it is our belief that it has been the intention of the Board to conduct the business of the city honestly and for the best interests of the people and the general prosperity of the city.

Never at any time has the writer had cause to believe that any member of the Board or any department head showed signs of not being on the square.

The Evening News is not in any way under obligations to any member of the Board more than to any ordinary citizen who is a reader of the paper.

It is a very easy matter to have strangers believe that there is something wrong with the management of the city. There are yet many defects in the streets, in the water system, in fire protection and in the general laws governing the city. Glendale is comparatively a young city. It has made rapid strides during its few years of municipal existence. It has forged ahead in spite of the influence of the leader of the present opposition who has been ready to oppose every worthy proposition. The municipal lighting system of which the citizens have great cause to be proud was bitterly opposed by that leader. What is needed at the present time in Glendale is sensible investigation. No city can prosper in the midst of a poisoned minded citizenship.

Let us have the truth and when we do hear the truth, may we have hearts big enough to receive it.

SOME VIEWS OF ADVERTISING

It would seem almost impossible that at this stage of American development is should be necessary to reason with merchants on the value of advertising; yet it is quite common, at least here in Glendale, to hear men who have goods to sell, argue that advertising does them no good. It is true that advertising costs money; so does everything that is of value. If it does not cost money people are apt to undervalue it. Advertising, however, has this peculiarity, that those who know its value and understand its use are always trying to get publicity for nothing.

That, of itself should convince even the most sceptical that advertising pays. It is quite common to find the very merchant who protests that he cannot afford to advertise and that all the benefit he would be likely to get from it would be offset by its cost, trying to get free publicity. They do seek publicity and because they do they are paying the highest tribute to the power of advertising they could possibly pay.

Not long ago a public man said in the office of the Glendale Evening News, speaking of another public man, "It's astonishing how that fellow contrives to get his name in the papers so often. He is always advertising himself." That may have been true or it might have seemed true. It is certain, however, that the man referred to got the publicity referred to because he had done something of public interest. The getting of publicity is like adventure. The old saying has it, "Adventures are to the adventurous." In like manner publicity comes to the man who advertises.

It may be depended upon that no man is getting publicity unless he has earned it. He has either done something that has news value and therefore legitimately gets into the news columns; or he is clever enough to contrive situations for himself that savor of news and must be published; or he is getting a legitimate amount of publicity along with his legitimate advertising. Out of it all appears the great truth that the wise man advertises and gets all the publicity he can.

Even the man who decries advertising and says it does not pay is advertising all the time one way or the other. Merchants advertise by placing their goods in the windows in the most attractive manner possible. They advertise by placing their names over their stores in glaring signs or by leaving electric lights burning in their windows all night. One way or other they advertise. The profitable manner of advertising, however, is to place their names and their wares where they will be seen by the greatest number of people possible.

By getting the description of one's goods into the homes of the people in such shape that they will see them when they sit down at night to read in peace one can get perhaps the greatest good out of advertising. To produce the best effect does not need a a great deal of matter to be crowded into a small space. It needs judiciously worded advertisements, set forth and displayed in appropriate type, with the proper amount of margin to catch the eye; it needs advertising of this nature placed in the proper medium and repeated persistently until the desired effect is produced. That is the kind of advertising that pays.

DESECRATION OF MARRIAGE

One of the most pitiable sights in this world is what the scripture describes as taking something down from its golden pedestal and placing it on a pavement of stones. That is a sight to move devils to laughter and angels to tears. Whether it be desecration of a trusting human heart or the disillusioning of an innocent human soul, the downfall of a being who held a high and honorable position or the vulgarizing of what was once a touching ceremonial the sight is always sad and sorrowful.

Marriage has always managed to retain about it the aroma of the early world. It is one of the few human ceremonies that retain the freshness and purity of its early institution, whether in the garden of Eden or elsewhere. It certainly is always Eden where a pure marriage is; where neither lust nor greed enters and where two hearts are one—"a two celled heart beating with one stroke."

To the Romans the ceremony of marriage was beautifully symbolical of all that is best in humanity. The ceremony of "confarreatio" one of the earliest forms of Roman marriage had for its central ceremony the breaking of a cake of bread over the wife's head. Thence came the modern custom of the wedding cake and also of the throwing of rice. The bride's veil was another symbol of marriage. The bride veiled herself for her husband and he lifting up the veil made her his own. Hence the word "nuptials."

Whatever the form, marriage has always been held symbolical and beautiful. To vulgarize such a ceremony is of course to take it from its golden pedestal and lay it upon a pavement of stones, to drag it in the mud. Elopement may be romantic; sometimes it might even be justified; but even then it is a dangerous precedent as we see in these modern days when children elope and foolish young people in a moment of exaltation, perhaps after having known each other for only a few hours get a license and are unhappy until another court undoes what a heedless authority first joined together.

Modern couples too often laugh at the words of the Scriptural admonition, "What God hath joined together let no man put asunder." It may be true of a large proportion of modern marriages that God never joined together the parties to the compact and that they only made the compact with mental reservations; but that does not make the marriages thus "performed." anything like what real marriage should be. That is the degradation of marriage and instead of "The voice that breathed o'er Eden" being heard at the performance of such unions, one can easily hear the laughter of fiends.

Marriage is the greatest of all conditions for the good of the human race. The laws that govern it should be United States laws. The bond should neither be possible under easy conditions, nor should it be dissolved without excellent and undoubtedly genuine grounds. Under better marriage laws it may yet be possible to restore a great deal of the early beauty of the wedded relation and to make the American home once more a powerful entity for the national good in places where it has lost much of that power.

ROMANCE OF THE SEA

LOS ANGELES CLUBMAN SHIPS AS THIRD MATE AND HAS ADVENTURE

Warren D. Wood, former commodore of the South Coast Yacht club and a well-known Los Angeles clubman, is back at his luxurious home in Los Angeles after a series of adventures in the south seas calculated to make Robinson Crusoe jealous.

Wood went to Honolulu six months ago on a pleasure trip. While there he received an offer of the third mate's job on the British ship Krestle and accepted it—for a lark.

Then the Jack London stuff began. When far out on the boundless sea Skipper Tindle of the Krestle began to notice that his "third luff" shaved daily and appeared on deck wearing silk neckties. The hardy skipper objected to it. There were tense scenes and exciting situations, with the use of belaying pins seemingly imminent.

Finally Wood saw that eventually somebody would have to be knocked into the lee scuppers, and being an athlete and hard as the proverbial nails, he decided to quit his job rather than hurt the captain's feelings, or anything else. But it is difficult to quit a third mate's job in the middle of the South Pacific.

Wood was resourceful. One night the Krestle dropped anchor in the lee of a shadowy tropical isle. Wood hopped into a ship's boat and rowed ashore. There he found a colony of cannibals, who ate bananas when there was nothing else handy.

He managed to keep out of the frying pan for five weeks, during which time the savages fed him like a king and viewed his increasing weight with evident relish. The situation was becoming a bit embarrassing when the little Norwegian steamer Thomas arrived.

Disguised behind a five weeks' beard, Wood approached the Swedish captain and asked for passage to Honolulu. He told the captain he had mansions in Los Angeles and lots of money. The captain elevated his beetling brows, but lowered them again, growled menacingly, and finally consented to let the society man work his way to Sydney, Australia.

At Sydney Wood told himself he would cable home for a money bag that would astonish the natives. But he did not. He was unable to identify himself to the satisfaction of the cable company, which wanted cash for the message in advance. The American consul wouldn't risk the amount demanded.

Two weeks later Wood—overalls, beard and all—asked for a job on the liner Ventura. He got one—peeling potatoes.

But he got his revenge. He obtained money in Honolulu and when the Ventura came through on its next voyage to California he appropriated the best suite and sat at the captain's right hand all the way to San Francisco.

BEES AND FLOWERS

FREEMAN M. KELLEY SAYS MODERN METHODS OF POLLINATION RIVAL NATURAL

According to Mr. Freeman Kelley, the well-known florist of Glendale, modern methods of cross-fertilization outdo the haphazard method of nature; not that these methods are in any way likely to supersede the ancient natural methods by which bees and insects carry fertilization from flower to flower, but that when special varieties of flowers or fruits are desired something more effective than the chance workings of the bees, insects and birds must be relied on.

"The methods of propagating special varieties of plants and flowers is by cross-fertilization between the varieties that exhibit the special color or characteristics desired. The descendants of these varieties are again selected and cross-fertilized, and so on until the flower or fruit is perfected. This answers very well with carnations, gladioli and roses, as well as with many other flowers and shrubs," said Mr. Kelley.

"Naturally one has to be careful in this mechanical method, and it has been found lacking when used for pollinating red clover, for instance. I believe that the United States department of agriculture has experimented with the production of red clover seed and naturally attempted the modern methods of pollination as likely to give more definite results; but here nature got the better of them. The mechanical devices failed and the department had to resort to the assistance of the common bumblebee and also the honey bee.

"One would imagine that clover of all natural productions would afford a sufficient supply of seed for propagation; but it is not so. For some years there has been an insufficiency of seed of the home-grown red clover. The price of the seed has been high and large quantities of inferior foreign seed have been imported. The clover acreage has diminished and the agricultural department has been striving to ascertain the minimum quantities of seed per acre necessary to secure satisfactory returns.

"The department has also been seeking to develop a heavy-seeding, hardy strain of clover, and finally has been experimenting with various mechanical forms of pollination. It was found that clover which was not pollinated or was self-pollinated yielded an almost negligible quantity of seed. In contrast to that result, it was found that the bumblebee was able to pollinate from 30 to 35 flowers a minute in dry weather. When few nectar-producing flowers are available it was found that the honey bee also collects large quantities of pollen from red clover and in the process cross-pollinization of the flowers takes place.

"Hand-operated brushes for cross-pollinization were also experimented with. Instead of increasing the seed yield, however, these were found actually to decrease it. There are, therefore, natural methods in the propagation of flowers and plants that no artificial means can supersede. We may assist nature at times and give direction to natural growths, but we can never wholly control them."

will inquire into the municipal acts of the trustees in detail and after doing so be prepared to issue a statement to the uninformed public as to the exact condition of affairs.

The question of the unfavorable advertising which Glendale is receiving from misinformed and unreliable correspondents to city papers was discussed and the following committee was appointed to confer with the management of the Times and other papers publishing this unreliable news concerning Glendale: A. T. Cowan, J. F. Lilly, G. B. Woodberry, W. J. Clendenin, O. A. Lane.

A. M. Brooks, who is a member of the Chamber of Commerce committee whose object is to work for the extension of Brand boulevard from Tropico to the city of Los Angeles, reported that he wished to have a public meeting of the associations promoting this extension held in the near future. On motion Saturday, Sept. 18, was set as the date for this meeting.

W. J. Clendenin, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce park committee, reported that his committee would take no action until a report was received from the municipal park committee.

There being no further business, the chamber adjourned.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Sunday, Sept. 12, topic, "Friendships That Are Worth Forming: Making Them; Keeping Them." Prov. 27:5, 6, 9, 10, 14, 17, 19.

Bible Help—Friend of God, Jas. 2:20-26. Who are Christ's friends? John 15:12-17. Mutual esteem, I. Sam. 2:31, 41-42. Friendliness, Prov. 18:24. For friendship's sake, II. Sam. 9:1-13. A friend's service, Acts 9:26-29.

Seed Notes

Nothing in this whole world is sweeter and more divine than a good, true friend, who will stand by you in the dark as well as sunshine; who will defend you against every ill tongue that befouls you. For who thus proves a friend in joy and adversity, his price is above rubies. Let me say a person who always flatters you, feeding your personal vanity, afraid to tell you your personal failings or cheer you by refraining to give you a kindly word when due, such is far from a true friend, for in the hour of trial such will allow your enemies to assail you behind your back and not raise a hand.

A friendship that leads into low ideals, that cheapens precious things, that belittles the most sacred, that is unmindful of the right of God and the Bible to your life thought and habits, that will not allow you to become friendly to others, is too mean to call by that name.

A true friendship becomes an opportunity to give, not to get. It thinks and prays for the highest good and best things for others. It seeks to show its interest and love continually without prejudice.

"O, self-denying love that thought alone
For needs of others, never for its own."

A friendship worth forming is one that does you real good. It is such when you retire at night you feel you feel you have someone who understands you and offers you his or her sympathy unstinted, for after all this is the sweetest fruit of friendship.

Another side is to prove personally that you yourself are worthy of the best friendship of others, choosing rather to have none than an unworthy one, unsettling your mind, your faith, your high ideals. And the one who wishes to be a friend must show himself friendly. The friendly traits must not be wanting, but strong and reliable.

With some it is more difficult to make friends than others. With some it is more difficult to keep them after once made. But the one who shows the friendly spirit, kindly interested in the welfare of others, willing to help in the time of need, desirous to go out of your way because it is a pleasure to do so, knowing it is doing you a kindness—that sort of friendship is worth cultivating and having.

And there is no friend "like the lowly Jesus," who will hear you when you call, who will help you when you fall, who said, "I will be with you always, even unto the end." His is the best friendship.

REMEMBER THE SABBATH

There will be the usual services at the First Methodist church, corner of Third street and Dayton court, tomorrow. There will be special music at the morning service, an anthem by the choir and a solo. The pastor, Rev. Bede A. Johnson, will preach on "The Overcoming Faith, or the Victory That Overcometh the World." In the evening the sermon subject will be, "Remember the Sabbath Day to Keep it Holy," and such sub-topics as: Do we keep the right day; the object of keeping any day and God's relation to the Sabbath-breaker will be discussed by the pastor. The Epworth league service at 6:30; joint men's and women's meeting at 6:30; Junior league at 3 p. m. The evening service begins at 7:30.

The lesson for the prayer meeting service next Wednesday evening is a continuation of the study of Revelations, chapters 4 to 11, What John meant by the dragon and the beast.

TO HOLD CORN

To guard against the poor seed corn danger, Nebraska farmers are being advised by the department of experimental agronomy of the University of Nebraska to keep at least a part of their supply of last year's seed corn as an emergency supply.

With corn throughout the state backward this year, there is danger that it will be soft, and with the possibility that it may not ripen properly there is the danger, experienced a few years ago, that it may not germinate after being planted, and so be worthless.

The present war is a punishment for Europe's irreligion, said the Bishop of Sebastapolis in a sermon at Salford Cathedral.

Mr. Attache Baker, at Petrograd, could have saved 491 of the 500 words he used in reporting the "pitch and tar situation" in Russia by simply saying: "When the Germans pitch in, the Russians tar out."

CANNING OF FRUIT

MRS. JOHN R. BARROWS SAYS USE NO SALICYLIC OR BORIC ACID

Druggists all over the state report that housewives are making great demand for salicylic acid and boric acid for fruit preserving purposes and for canning vegetables. Preparations of these two acids are sometimes made in the form of a powder and sold under various trade names for the preserving of canned goods in home canning. In the directions are found instructions to fill the jar with the fruit or vegetables, cover with water and add a teaspoonful of the preserving powder.

"It may be true," said Mrs. John R. Barrows, 443 West Colorado street, to a representative of the Glendale Evening News, "that these compounds retard the decay of the fruit or vegetable, but their use may be very seriously detrimental to health. Salicylic acid is well known as a poisonous substance and one of the evils that may accompany its use is derangement of the digestion. The extensive use of such substances in preserving food would be likely to result in disturbance of digestion and health.

"I would never think of using such acids for preserving. The very purpose of home preserving and canning is to avoid the chance of using articles put up in such fashion. I believe that the federal food and drugs act prohibits the use of harmful preservatives in foods that enter interstate commerce. The food law of nearly every state forbids the sale of foods that have been preserved with harmful substances.

"Of course, neither the federal nor the state law applies to foods preserved in the home; but I suppose the law never contemplated that anyone would be foolish enough to use as a preservative the very substances the law is endeavoring to protect them against.

"In preserving fruits I use one cup of sugar to two cups of water; if the fruit is very sour I use two cups of sugar to three of water. I never have any trouble with either fruit of vegetables. I put up all my own pears, plums, blackberries, apricots, raspberries, etc. They are always all right. Last year I put up 36 cans of tomatoes and out of all these only three cans went wrong, and that was because the rubbers were imperfect.

"I cook my fruit in the fireless cooker, pouring on the boiling syrup and letting the jars stand in the cooking cans half filled with boiling water for three hours. Properly sterilized by heat and sealed, fruits and vegetables can be kept indefinitely, and there is no excuse for running any risk by using preserving powders which may be injurious to health. The use of such powders also encourages uncleanly or careless work in canning. Reliance is placed in the efficacy of the preserving compound instead of upon cleanliness and heat.

"I should think that no housewife would use, wittingly, in the foods she provides for her family substances she could not use in foods for sale without violating the law, because these substances are injurious to health."

WORKERS SAY THEY ARE FIGHTING THE EMPLOYERS' GREED

(Special Correspondence)

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—After three and a half months as minister of munitions, David Lloyd-George is unable to obtain a satisfactory output of war material.

Lloyd-George's speech before the trade union congress at Bristol was his first announcement regarding his work as minister of munitions. More factories have been erected and equipped than there are employes for them, is the basis of Lloyd-George's complaint. He declared the munition plants are short 80,000 skilled workers and 200,000 unskilled workers. Only 15 per cent of the machinery in these plants is operated at night. He made an appeal for the abolition of union restrictions to allow greater speed in turning out munitions.

George Lansbury and other socialist leaders explained that the workingmen will never consent to exploitation of their patriotism. He declared they are fighting the employers' greed. In response to this Lloyd-George told the members of the Bristol congress that profits have been eliminated from 95 per cent of the munition factories.

Nevertheless, Lansbury is right in declaring the workers must struggle to meet the high cost of living. It is improbable that Britain will solve the munitions problem until the problem following the rise of 33 per cent in the high cost of living this year has been solved first.

THE JOLLY OLD FOLKS' PICNIC

There are in Southern California a great many people who were born over 70 years ago. These people are not old folks in spirit, and so they like to meet together for a picnic reunion as well as the younger folks. So if you are over 70 this is your invitation for yourself and all your friends past that age to attend the annual picnic reunion of all the people in Southern California who are past 70 years of age.

It will be held in Sycamore Grove, Los Angeles, Saturday, Oct. 2, 1915. (Please remember, it is held each year the first Saturday in October.) It is an all-day picnic with a basket dinner at noon, an informal program following. Bring your dinner, also cup and spoon. Coffee, with cream and sugar, will be provided free for all. Come as early as you can and have a happy day with these jolly old-young people. It is for all over 70, but if you need help to carry your dinner or to aid you, why just bring any friend along. Pass the word along to just as many as you can, so all may know of it. If you are not yet old enough, extend this invitation to someone who is.

If you want further information, call up C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State societies, Main 5635, or Home 10459, or see him at the California Savings Bank, Fourth and Spring streets, Los Angeles.

A BAT OF ANCIENT LINEAGE

George Perring, the hard hitting infielder of the Kansas City Feds uses a bat that is more than thirty years old and which came originally from a prison scaffold that was the scene of many hangings.

Perring's father was a baseball enthusiast. When in the heydey of his career the scaffold of the Ohio state prison was dismantled and the older Perring got a piece of it—a hickory joist—and had it carved down into the size of a baseball bat.

For twenty years he used the bat and it produced a large flock of hits. Seven years ago the father gave the bat to the son and the son has been using it ever since.

Perring never allows any one to carry around the bat for him. He takes it himself in a special case.

PRISONERS AT WORK

Warden Smith of Folsom penitentiary is putting the grounds outside the prison in first-class condition. On one side of the prison Warden Smith has put the convicts to work clearing off the rocks and has planted 1500 fruit trees. More than 1000 trees have been set out by the convicts this year. The warden says he doesn't like the looks of unsightly rocks around the temporary home of the prisoners.

SAUGUS INSTEAD OF SURREY

The postoffice department has ordered the name of the postoffice at Surrey to be changed to Saugus. For many years the well-known railroad junction of Saugus, beyond the Newhall tunnel, has been afflicted with two names, one given by the railway and the other by the postoffice people. Recently Congressman Randall recommended that the name of the postoffice be changed to correspond with that of the railway station, so that now it is Saugus hereafter.
